

I believe that by allowing less companies to own more stations and forms of media is the opposite of what media and broadcasting is all about. This limits free speech and makes everything the same on the air waves. In addition, it takes jobs away as fewer people are needed to provide/create content when many stations are owned by the same company. This is the case for many Clear Channel stations - disc jockeys record announcements for multiple stations - eliminating on air positions. I strongly reject your decision and hold much less faith in your logic. Sincerely, Tom Perry